

Investigating

Before research and investigation is undertaken, it is important that the nature of the design problem contained in the brief is clearly understood.

Identify what information, knowledge and experience is required to complete the design process.

Consider:

- what currently exists
- what is required
- what is possible.

